

Alternate Dispute Resolution (ADR) has been gaining ground in the recent past in view of the backlog of cases in the courts and other judiciary forums. ADR, if properly understood, could result in less painful resolution to disputes resulting in considerable savings in time and money. The following are articles published in Chartered Secretary – December 2024 issue, the official publication of the Institute of Company Secretaries of India (ICSI). The information has been sourced from the official website of the ICSI which is free-to-download. The information is being furnished to the members of the Chamber as a service. Members are encouraged to visit the website of ICSI and its publication “Chartered Secretary” a monthly magazine.
