

Discussion Paper on “Reimagining India’s Quality Ecosystem”

Discussion Paper on “Reimagining India’s Quality Ecosystem,” published by the Research and Information System for Developing Countries (RIS), New Delhi

Research and Information System for Developing Countries (RIS) is a New Delhi-based autonomous policy research institute that specializes in global economic issues and international trade. This featured discussion paper, “Reimagining India’s Quality Ecosystem,” is co-authored by Rajeev Kher , Anil Jauhri and Om Stutee. It analyzes the systemic gaps in India’s National Quality Infrastructure (NQI) and offers a strategic roadmap to overhaul regulatory and institutional frameworks to align with mature international trade practices

The RIS white paper is a comprehensive 34-page strategic document that provides a roadmap for transforming India’s “Quality Infrastructure” into a world-class system. To help the stakeholders to have a bird’s eye view of the discussion paper and engage them to share their comments, here is a detailed breakdown of what each major section covers.

The future of India’s regulatory and audit landscape is being written right now. This discussion paper is not just a study; it is a Consultative Document that will influence future laws, QCOs (Quality Control Orders), and empanelment rules.

Your views are needed to answer:

1. Are the proposed standards practical for your specific sector (Medical Devices, Manufacturing, IT etc)?
2. Do the Accreditation reforms address the “Technical Barriers to Trade” you face in exports?
3. How can the Government better support Indian Consulting and Auditing Firms in this new ecosystem?

Download the full 34-page document here:

<https://www.ris.org.in/sites/default/files/Publication/reimagining-india-quality-ecosystem.pdf>

Submit your comments to:

RIS Discussion Papers intend to disseminate preliminary findings of the research carried out within the framework of institute’s work programme or related research.

The feedback and comments may be directed to:

Email: dgoffice@ris.org.in